Communists Against Jap Government

Newly Formed
Federation of Toilers Defends
Imperial Rule

TOKYO, Oct. 10.—(P)—Japanese, parading with red banners and Korean independence flags jammed traffic in front of General MacArthur's headquarters today, celebrating the release of political prisoners, including some Communists.

The parade crowd was small—only around 600—but the marchers formed after an all-day meeting of the Japanese Communist party and they turned their backs on the Imperial Palace, just across the street from MacArthur's Headquarters.

TOKYO, Oct. 10.—(P)—Liberated political prisoners emerged from behind the massive walls of four Japanese prisons today to the acclaim of welcoming communist crowds shouting opposition to imperial rule—while a newlyformed National Federation of Toilers arose to defend the imperial house and assail the Reds.

The Japanese navy's chief paymaster, Vice Adm. Ushinosuke Yamamoto, meanwhile disclosed that the navy's impounded fortune of several million dollars was acquired from conquered nations and from the Japanese people themselves, and was paid for abroad in now-worthless military currency and at home in promissory notes which never were redeemed.

Promoters of the newly-created federation resolved to "wage a determined fight against Communism which aims at extermination of our unique national policy under the emperor."

The federation and another group favoring a drastic overhauling of the Japanese diet rose suddenly in uneasy Nippon today as the new liberal premier, Baron Kijuro Shidehara, told the people in a broadcast:

Majority to Rule
"The hold of the military clique and bureaucrats on political power has been broken and all politics and economics will be determined by the will of the majority."

Sixteen liberated prisoners walked through the big wooden gate in Fuchu prison's massive stone wall today to be hoisted immediately to the shoulders of a cheering crowd of 300 Japanese Communists and Koreans.

Shouting "Banzai for the release of fighters of the People's Front," the crowd waved red flags and Korean independence flags—then listened quietly while Communist Kiyuchi Tokuda urged overthrow of the imperial system.

"The imperial system is the root of all evils," he asserted. Tokuda spent 18 years in prison for voicing such thoughts—before General MacArthur's directives (Please Turn To Page 4 col. 2)

$90,000,000 Road Program Soon to Start

Million Dollars
Worth of Projects
Let Next Month

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 10.—(P)—About a million dollars worth of highway projects will be let in mid-November to start Missouri's $90,000,000 postwar road program, the state highway commission has decided.

Bulk of the construction must wait for spring weather, chief engineer Carl W. Brown said, but work adapted to the winter months will start as soon as possible after contracts are let.

Before 1946 is over, Brown said the department would have about $27,000,000 worth of projects ready for letting. Whether that many contracts will be let and the work will be accomplished, however, depends on whether contractors can get men, materials and equipment.

Engineer Named
Completing an earlier shift in personnel, the commission yesterday named L. M. Hoskins division one engineer at St. Joseph succeeding O. D. Chrisman, who resigned rather than leave his home at Springfield. Hoskins has been assistant construction engineer at state headquarters.

The next in a series of division meetings to acquaint county officials and local road boosters with the postwar construction program were set for Hannibal Oct. 19 and St. Joseph Oct. 20. On Nov. 3 the commission will have a special meeting at Jefferson City to award certificates to 25 employees with 25 years or more service.

Marion, Ohio, Youth Named Star Farmer

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 10.—(P)—Six years ago young Gordon J. Eichhorn of Marion, Ohio, enrolled in a vocational agriculture course at his high school to learn more about caring for 26 sheep, a couple of steers and a sow that he owned. Last night, 20-year-old Eichhorn stood before applauding fellow farmers to receive the title of Star Farmer of America.

Presentation of the award, which carried with it a $500 cash gift from the Weekly Kansas City Star, was made at the first day of the two-day 18th annual convention of the Future Farmers of America.

With Eichhorn was his attractive brunette wife, who has taken her place with him as a leader in their farm community. Since he took that first course in agriculture, the young farmer has increased his holdings to 62 hogs, 90 sheep, 1,500 chickens, 20 acres of wheat, 67 acres of corn, 18 acres of soybeans, 26 of oats, six of barley and 52 of alfalfa and clover. His farm equipment is valued at $2,028.

Owens Own Farm
He has his own 10 acre farm and also farms 186 acres in partnership with his father, J. P. Eichhorn, rents a 40 acre farm from a neighbor, and operates a 56 acre farm for another neighbor who is in the armed forces.

Regional star farmers were also named at last night's ceremony. They are Walter D. Carlin, Jr., of Coatesville, Pa., for the North Atlantic region; and Clifford E. Bailey, Snohomish, Wash., western region. Each received a $100 award from the Weekly Kansas City Star.

Johnson in Fair Condition

The condition of Charley Johnson, 1302 South Grand avenue, who was wounded early Saturday morning by Officer Hale Hull, when Johnson went into an alleged rage, is considered fair. He is at the Bothwell hospital.

Johnson was shot through the left arm, the bullet ranging through the muscular part of the arm, entering his body below the arm pit and ranging across, lodging in his right side.

Prosecuting Attorney L. J. Harney today said no charges would be filed against Johnson in the state court, declaring the city court should handle the case, as it was nothing more than common assault.

There are several divisions under our control and these are the troops which are occupying a large section of the island of Honshu and most of Japan, in fact.

"Our headquarters still are in Yokohama, but we have moved from the former offices of Nippon Yusen Kaisha (Japanese Mail Shipping Company) to the Yokohama Customs House because it is larger. Sgt. Hargrove Happy to See Familiar Face

Wounded, He Finds
Sedalia Friends on
Evacuation Plane

Imagine the surprise of Sgt. Billy T. Hargrove, of Sedalia, when he was about to be evacuated from Axiams, Austria, to a hospital in Paris, France, after having been wounded by shrapnel, to look up and see a familiar face. It was that of Master Sgt. Marshall Tapp, who was stationed for a year at the Sedalia Army Air Field and whom Sgt. Hargrove knew in Sedalia. The plane in which he was evacuated was also from the Sedalia Army Air Field and one of the other men, S/Sgt. Joe Pemberton had been stationed for a year at the SAAF.

Sgt. Hargrove has been in bride, visiting his parents, Rev. and Mrs. L. B. Hargrove, 1408 South Monticue avenue.

Sgt. Hargrove, has been in service three years, twelve months of which he spent in Europe. He entered service on December 4, 1942 and with the American Seventh Army landed at Marseilles, in Southern France late last fall. He went into action on October 1, 1944 and up to the Rhone Valley, crossed the Siegfried Line into Germany and on into Austria. He was with the American forces that went through the famous Brenner Pass into Northern Italy where they met General Clark's men coming up from the south. Sgt. Hargrove was a forward observer, attached much of the time to the Infantry.

Has Awards
Sgt. Hargrove received the Purple Heart, the Bronze Star and three battle stars for campaigns in Northern France, Rhineland and Central Europe. His outfit was the first American unit to enter the German Concentration Camp at Dachau, near Munich, and he said it was the most dreadful thing he ever saw. The German guards were trying to dispose of the camp and make their getaway, but too late. He says that many of the guards committed suicide when they saw they were about to be captured. Among the horrors of the camp were 18 car loads of carcasses of human beings that the Germans had failed to dispose of.

At the end of his furlough he will return to Jefferson Barracks, where he expects to receive his discharge and will then complete his college education.

Describes Yokohama
"Yokohama is, or was, the main port of entry into Japan and covered an area about the size of Louisville, although they say it once had about 600,000 population. It is generally destroyed except for the 'earthquake proof' international section in which we are located and which was rebuilt of marble and stone after the great earthquake in 1923. Yokohama is 21 miles below Tokyo on the coast of Tokyo bay. The entire area between Yokohama and Tokyo was taken up by industrial plants which are largely destroyed now.

"I went to Tokyo yesterday and it was a terrific experience. Before the war Tokyo was the world's third largest city with a population in excess of seven million. Great expanses of the business district were destroyed.

Seventh Game Lost by Cubs By 9-3 Score

Newhouser Scatters
Cub Hits and Wins
For Detroit: Tigers
Ice Game in First

By Sid Feder

WRIGLEY FIELD, Chicago, Oct. 10.—(P)—The Detroit Tigers won the 1945 world series today by trampling the Chicago Cubs, 9 to 3, in the seventh and deciding game.

Skyrocketing to their first world championship in ten years—their second of all time—the thumping Tigers smashed five runs across in the first inning for the merriest scoring spree of the series, and then rode home behind the brilliant twirling of their ace left hander, Hal Newhouser. Although combed for ten hits, compared to the nine the Tigers got off half a dozen Cub curvers, Hal fanned ten to set a new modern series strikeout record of 22 strikeouts in a fall classic.

Pitches Air Tight Ball

Pitching air-tight ball in the clutches, Newhouser was rarely in trouble, giving up a run in the first on two hits; another in the fourth when Andy Pafko tripled the tally across and the final one in the eighth, when Bill Nicholson doubled the marker home.

Meantime, his mates gave him timely hitting support with men on base, particularly tall Paul Richards, his catcher, who clouted two doubles for four of the Tigers runs. One of these was a base clearing three-run smash headlining the first inning spree. In the eighth, the little finger of Richards' right hand was broken by a foul tip and he left the game.

Set Attendance Record

A crowd of 41,590 turned out in the chilly weather for this series "clinch" and wrote a new world series attendance record into the books, bringing the total for the seven games to 333,457, compared to the previous high of 328,051 who saw the Yankees and Cardinals fight it out in 1926.

Still suffering from the championship drought that has kept them from a world series win since 1908, the Cubs saw the ball game blow away before a man was out. Hank Borowy, hurling in the third successive game in this series and seeking his third win, was clubbed from the mound in exactly nine pitches as Skeeter Webb, Eddie Mayo and Doc Cramer singled in order, Webb coming home on the third blow.

First Inning
Cubs—Webb took the full count and then slapped a single into right field. Mayo clubbed the first pitch into right field for a single, sending Webb to third. Cramer lobbed a single near the left field line, scoring Webb and sending Mayo to second. That was all for Borowy, and big Paul Berlingier went to the hill for the Cubs. Greenberg sacrificed to Cavarretta, who walked, filling the bases. Borowy reached the full count and then he pitched up to Hack. Outlaw walked on four straight pitches, forcing Mayo across. Richards doubled into the left field corner, scoring Cramer, Cullenbine and Outlaw. Newhouser rolled out, Johnson to Cavarretta.

Cubs—Hack was called out on strikes, looking at a sweeping curve. Johnson smacked a double to left center field. Mayo lined Hack went out. Hughes walked on five pitches, safe on Newhouser's error. Johnson holding second. Cavarretta singled to right, scoring Johnson, and sending Outlaw to third. Pafko hit into a double play, Webb to Mayo to York.

Second Inning
Tigers—Webb filed to Pafko in deep center. Mayo lined Hack went out. Cramer singled cleanly into right field, his 10th hit of the series. Greenberg walked, filling the bases. Cullenbine's decisions. Cullenbine also walked, filling the bases. Berlingier whipped two strikes past York and then walked him, forcing in Cramer. Hughes walked on five pitches, safe on Newhouser's error. Johnson holding second. Cavarretta singled to right, scoring Johnson, and sending Outlaw to third. Pafko hit into a double play, Webb to Mayo to York.

One run, two hits, one error, one left.

Cubs—Nicholson fouled out to Richards. Livingston bounced to Outlaw, who threw him out at first. Hughes was called out on strikes.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Third Inning
Tigers—Richards was called out on strikes, without taking a swing. Newhouser walked on five pitches, safe on Newhouser's error. Johnson holding second. Cavarretta singled to right, scoring Johnson, and sending Outlaw to third. Pafko hit into a double play

Merry-Go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — The nation's giant, bumptious CIO United Auto Workers' union is now split wide open over its post-war strike policy.

At opposite ends of the conflict are raucous, hard-hitting R. J. Thomas, known as labor's undiplomatic diplomat and two-fisted, brainy Walter Reuther, vice president of the union and first predecessor to Thomas' throne.

Reuther is eager to snatch Thomas' presidency away from him at the next auto workers' union convention, is trying hard to become the union's No. 1 figure even if it means strikes which blacken labor's name. However, since Reuther heads the powerful General Motors' section of the union, he may have his way and pull a first class strike that will damage labor even more with the nation.

It was kept very hush-hush, but at the recent meeting of the auto workers' union 22-man board in Flint, Mich., Reuther called in eight trusted board members to explore his future. Every man present promised to keep the proceedings secret. However, what transpired has now leaked out.

Reuther asked his fellow board members how many of them would support him for the union's presidency. Five, although friends of Reuther, turned their thumbs down. Two agreed to back his candidacy, and one stood on the fence. As a result, Reuther has decided he needs a further build-up before trying for the union's presidency.

Since then, Reuther and Thomas have been split on union policies, with the public and the auto workers sometimes caught in the factional middle. Reuther knows that Thomas is the heir-apparent to Phil Murray's throne as president of the CIO, and is trying to knock Thomas out of that spot.

Fundamental difference inside the auto union is over strategy. Thomas is against strikes now. He wants to cooperate with the big auto companies on reconversion, then strike later if necessary. Thomas has been arguing privately that it is unwise to strike until the highly competitive big three — Ford, Chrysler and General Motors — get their assembly lines running next spring. Then the union could strike one at a time, force them to settle because of the fear the other two big manufacturers would stall the market during the shutdown.

Right now, Thomas tells his board members, the auto companies have made enough money this year to permit them to produce nothing, stage a sit-down strike against the union and form a united front which may wreck the CIO's most volatile and powerful organization.

Reuther, however, won't go along. He favors a strike in Gen-

Jobs for Missourians

President Truman's latest rash of appointments from his native Missouri has unleashed a new rash of jokes about Missourians taking over Washington. One story goes like this:

Two new government officials were talking. One said, "My, you have got a big job. You must come from Missouri."

"No, I don't," replied the new appointee.

"Well, how did you get such a lush job if you're not from Missouri?"

"I was lucky. I was just riding through Missouri on a bus."

Rankin's Witch-Hunting Committee

A petition to discharge the house committee on un-American activities — completely dominated by routin'-trotin' John Rankin of Mississippi — is being circulated in the house next week.

The house judiciary has refused to act on the resolution of Representative Frank Hook of Michigan, calling for the end of this committee. Hook claims the committee was created as a standing committee by a parliamentary trick of Rankin's in January, but Hook has done little about forcing his resolution out of committee.

Therefore Representative Ellis Patterson of California has notified Hook that unless he acts this week, Patterson will start circulating a petition to bring Hook's resolution to the floor.

Congressmen Lobby

Last week newspapers told how Winder Harris, former Virginia congressman now representing shipbuilders, appeared on the floor of the house of representatives during the debate on the ship sales bill, which is of vital importance to his employers. Harris was properly criticized for using his floor privilege, as a former member, to lobby for the shipbuilders during the debate.

What was not reported, however, was the more vocal lobbying of a man who is still a member of congress — Republican Ellsworth Buck, of the Wall Street district in New York. Buck, who owns oil stocks himself, fought bitterly to prevent passage of an amendment to the bill increasing the price of oil tankers the government is selling to oil companies.

The amendment, offered by Representative Henry Jackson of Washington, was finally passed and saved the government from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 by charging the oil companies 25 percent more in purchasing oil tankers.

Buck had disqualified himself from voting on this amendment while the bill was in committee, because of the oil stocks he holds; but when it came to the all-important debate on the house floor,

he said not a word to colleagues about his stock when he urged them to vote down the Jackson amendment.

U. S. Propaganda Machine

Assistant Secretary of State Bill Benton, founding father of a go-getting advertising agency and guiding spirit of Encyclopedia Britannica, has just about finished his plan for the first peacetime propaganda agency to be operated by the U. S. government. Professor Harold Lasswell is working with Benton to polish the rough draft before it is presented to Secretary of State Byrnes.

Benton, who early learned how to get around obstacles, will propose to Byrnes that in view of the expected congressional opposition to anything smacking of "propaganda," Bernard Baruch or Owen D. Young or some other elder statesman should present the plan to the public.

Benton is recommending, too, that the new propaganda agency be planned to get along at first with only about 1,000 employees and a budget of from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000. Earlier plans had called for a budget of $60,000,000 to $75,000,000, but in view of the present economy spirit of congress, Benton observes, "if we aim too high now and ask too much, the whole thing may be murdered."

Close contact with the Associated Press, the United Press and other private news agencies will be maintained in order, so far as possible, to pacify them. The plan does call for transmission by the state department of news from all government agencies, however. The field representatives of the new agency will be attached to U. S. embassies and legations all over the world, with the top men to be designated as "ministers in charge of public affairs." These ministers would have on their staffs a cultural attache, a news chief and a library director, each

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Ailing Feet Often the Cause of Fatigue

By WILLIAM A. O'BRIEN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

The common complaints of fatigue, backache, nervous irritability and headaches often are caused by the even more common foot ailments. Arch trouble is often blamed, but supports should not be worn unless absolutely necessary as the greatest benefit usually is obtained from proper foot exercises.

Dr. O'Brien

The foot serves as a support and as a lever which raises and propels the body. It consists of 26 bones held together by ligaments, with each bone forming a joint with one or more bones. The long arch runs from the heel to the ball of the foot, while the transverse arch extends across the sole from the large toe to the small toe.

The heel is fairly rigid but the rest of the foot is flexible. The small muscles in the bottom of the foot, the leg muscles, ligaments, and a thick tough tissue also on the bottom of the foot, called fascia, help to support the foot.

Print Shows Flatness

Flat feet cause pain in the feet

and legs, fatigue after standing or walking, and a tendency for the ankles to turn in. The imprint of flat feet on a wet surface shows the normal concavity to be absent. Although the feet are relatively elastic, in flat feet the arch does not support the weight of the body properly.

Correction of flat feet should include the wearing of proper shoes. Stand on a piece of paper on a firm surface and trace the outline of your stockings feet. If you place your shoes over these outlines, no line of the drawing should be seen. Good shoes should be long enough and broad enough for comfort in sitting, standing and walking. The soles of the shoes should protect the feet from injury, and the heels should be of proper height.

Exercise Feet

Practice standing and walking properly. Health authorities recommend that we point our feet forward in standing and place them two to four inches apart. Support your body weight on the outside of the foot and grip the floor from time to time with your toes to exercise your muscles.

Exercise your feet at night before you go to bed. Limber them up first by pulling your toes forward and stretching the fore part of your foot to the inside. The following movements may be practiced: Rotary movements of the foot; picking up marbles with toes; gathering towel under foot with toes; pulling up your arches and rolling your feet to the outside with your toes down; rising to your toes and shifting your weight to the outside of the foot; rolling a golf ball under the ball of the foot.

he said not a word to colleagues about his stock when he urged them to vote down the Jackson amendment.

U. S. Propaganda Machine
Assistant Secretary of State Bill Benton, founding father of a go-getting advertising agency and guiding spirit of Encyclopedia Britannica, has just about finished his plan for the first peacetime propaganda agency to be operated by the U. S. government. Professor Harold Lasswell is working with Benton to polish the rough draft before it is presented to Secretary of State Byrnes.

Benton, who early learned how to get around obstacles, will propose to Byrnes that in view of the expected congressional opposition to anything smacking of "propaganda," Bernard Baruch or Owen D. Young or some other elder statesman should present the plan to the public.

Benton is recommending, too, that the new propaganda agency be planned to get along at first with only about 1,000 employees and a budget of from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000. with staffs of from three to five persons.

Apparently Benton has already been in contact with the Russian-haters of the state department, for he has named "Germany, Austria, Trieste, the whole of the Balkans and eastern Europe" as "emergency areas" for extensive U. S. propaganda work. In contrast, he lists "southeast Asia, Japan, Coast of China, Korea, Spain and Portugal" as "non-emergency areas."

Regarding movies, Benton has proposed that the state department "tell Hollywood what must be done about documentaries and the content of feature films; and if Hollywood won't do it the state department will, then the government will get busy in some other way." He also calls for the appointment of "film attaches" in major film-market areas, their job being to push the Hollywood feature films in competition with those of other countries.

17th First Saw Combat at 'Bulge'

By NEA Service

The 17th Airborne Division was first committed to combat in the Battle of the Bulge, and the method of its entry was one of the most spectacular of the war. The troopers of the 17th were in their English billets one day, and at Reims the next, face to face with Von Rundstedt's breakthrough divisions.

The initial assignment of the men who wear the grasping eagle's claw on their shoulders was an enormously important one. They had been flown into the battle area in transports, under cover of darkness and in treacherous flying weather, to relieve the 11th Armored Division south of Bastogne, and to attempt to checkmate the German counterattack.

The mission of the 17th was not to hold, but to attack. And Attack they did, despite a fierce foe, road blocks, snow storms and thou-

ESME OF PARIS by Esme Davis

CHILD ACROBAT

I NEVER knew where grand-mama unearthed Ograinsky. He was an enormous broken-nosed ex-wrestler of Polish extraction, married to a thin, bitter, cockney Englishwoman who looked after the wardrobe and always had a cold in the head.

The Ograinskys had five children of their own, four boys and a girl, all born in different countries and all speaking different tongues with their parents—a family tower of Babel. There were three other children in the troupe, also of diverse nationalities, and to hear old man Ograinsky conducting a rehearsal was something to marvel at. Despite his brutality, he was a fine trainer and built a good act with us.

To Ograinsky either people were acrobats or they weren't, and he had every intention of making them learn to do tricks and incredible feats, whether or not he ruined their health in the attempt.

Like many ex-wrestlers, he had something sadistic about him, and if he saw any of the children, especially his own, sick from exhaustion, he would get a mad gleam in his eye and work them until they dropped on the floor. He taught us tumbling, back somersaults, and full twisters in a "mechanic" or harness till we learned the timing. Then he had to do these tricks alone without any help.

A mechanic is a stout leather belt which fits around the body under the armpits, with a ring in the back to which a rope is attached with a snap. The rope goes up to a pulley in the roof, passes through it and down to the hand of the trainer, who can manipulate his pupils' bodies by lifting them, or save them from falls by pulling on the rope as they do their tricks. This apparatus is used in all kinds of acrobatic work, aerial trapeze, and vaulting on horses.

OGRAINSKY started me off in this as basic training. For a while everything was fine. All the other children were more or less advanced in it, but the trouble really began when I had to learn to turn in the air without the mechanic. For some reason I could not learn to "tuck," which is to roll one's self into a ball, touch the knees with the head, and make a complete turn landing on the feet and producing a somersault.

This position affords protection for the head in case of a fall and also helps the body revolve. Ograinsky, impatient to have me work in the act as soon as possible, used to yell at me till I became flustered and had some nasty falls.

This went on for two or three days till he finally got a knotted rope and hit me over the knees with it to make me turn higher and faster. Welts and dark bruises were the result, and grandmama made him stop. Then he went to cup his hand and hit me on the back of the neck to send me over and make me keep my head in, explaining to grandmama that it was the only way I could be saved from a fall on my head and a possible broken neck. It did teach me to do the trick but eventually resulted in chronic headaches which threatened to affect my eyesight.

We danced a ballet on the points and did an equestrian act, practically ballet, vaulting on and off the horses' broad backs, the girls wearing old-fashioned ballet "tutus" and the boys white silk tights with black velvet jerkins, similar to costumes worn in the Sylphides ballet. We did graceful poses while the fat white horses (chained by us before every show) galloped around the ring. Then we had the tumbling act and the cross flying trapeze act, which was our star number and really outstanding.

A flying trapeze act is done with a group of people over a net, and the first thing I was taught was how to fall in the net without injuring myself, and with grace. This is so important that I can now understand Ograinsky's fury when I could not learn to tuck, for the same movement is used to turn in the air before landing in the net.

I loved my work, of course, and began to get the thrill of danger and the thirst for applause.

WE played a few weeks in and around Moscow; the Ograinsky signed a contract with a relatively small one-ring circus playing a winter route through Romania, the Balkans, Poland, Finland, and crossing by boat to Scandinavia. The circus was run by three Romanian gypsy brothers with the Italian name of Morelli. They had been acrobats themselves, and their families for generations back had owned small traveling shows.

The entire circus traveled by train and did not carry large animal acts. What animals they did carry were boxed in the worst possible way, but I don't think they could possibly have suffered more than the performers did.

Of course it was valuable experience for me, and in a way I enjoyed it, but this must have been very hard for grandmama, who was convinced some one had cast the evil eye on us. She traveled with me for the first few weeks, then had to return to mother, who was so ill she could not be alone, so I was left in the care of Mrs. Ograinsky.

When the circus reached the end of the tour and we were in Scandinavia, grandmama got Ograinsky a booking in Copenhagen with her own act, in the famous Schumann Circus there.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Miss Imogene Johnson of Piedmont, Mo., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Johnson of Ellsinore, Mo., and Sergeant Billy T. Hargrove, United States army, son of Rev. and Mrs. L. B. Hargrove of 1408 South Moniteau avenue, were married at the parsonage of the First Baptist church in Doniphan, Mo., on Saturday evening, September 29, with the pastor, Rev. Alphas Capps, officiating.

The bride was employed in the Triple AAA office at Ellington, going from there to Van Buren where she served as circuit clerk and recorder for two years and later going to Piedmont where she has since been employed.

Sgt. Hargrove was born in Norborne, Mo., and was graduated from the high school at Bogard. He attended William Jewell college, Liberty, Mo., in 1937 and 1938. He came to Sedalia and was employed at the Golden Roast Coffee company in 1939 and 1940. On December 4, 1942 he entered service and served twelve months overseas in the European theatre. He received the Purple Heart, the Bronze Star and three battle stars for campaigns in northern France, Rhineland and central Europe. At the end of his furlough Sgt. Hargrove will return to Jefferson Barracks where he expects to be discharged. He then plans to return to some college or university to complete his education.

James Edward Rasa, 17-year-old son of Alva W. Rasa, 219 East Saline avenue, who enlisted in the navy October 2 and will leave for St. Louis Thursday evening, was honored Tuesday evening with a supper attended by friends of the family.

From St. Louis, James Edward will go to San Diego, Calif., for training.

Mr. Rasa has three other sons also in military service—Sgt. Harry Rasa, with the 101st airborne division in Europe, Pfc. Leroy Rasa, with the marine corps in the South Pacific, and S1/C Eugene Rasa, with the navy in the South Pacific.

Miss Lois Patton, Syracuse, Kas., Mrs. Mary Sweet, St. Louis, and Miss Mary Giltner, Omaha, Neb., army hostesses at service clubs at Fort Leonard Wood, were visitors in Sedalia Monday.

Their purpose in coming to Sedalia was to interest a woman's club in sponsoring organized groups of girls to attend dances and other entertainments at the Fort Leonard Wood service clubs.

A chicken supper Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Curtion on East Boonville avenue, honored Pfc. Henry Linsey, who is spending a 45-day furlough in Sedalia after three years' military service, including 29 months' overseas duty.

Paved the Way For Invasions

William J. Donath, machinist's mate, first class, 1506 East Fourth street, Sedalia, Mo., served with an underwater demolition team—the navy's famed group of expert swimmers who paved the way for invasions of enemy-held beaches. They served at Normandy, southern France, Saipan, Tinian, Peleliu, Anguar, Iwo Jima, Lingayen, Zambales, Okinawa, Tsugen Shima, Kerama Retto and in the occupation of Japan.

The work of underwater demolition teams was vital to the success of landing operations. They cleared enemy beaches of obstructions and blasted ways through reefs so landing ships might enter. Their casualties— as high as 40 per cent at Normandy—helped keep down the losses among the men who attacked on D-days, always days after the "sailors in trunks" had done their work.

At Surrender Ceremonies

ABOARD THE USS DAVID W. TAYLOR — LeRoy J. Comer, seaman, first class, Sedalia, served on this destroyer which was among the first warships to enter Kagoshima Bay, Kyushu, for the surrender ceremonies.

Serving as flagship for Capt. Clyde M. Jensen, commander of the naval force, this vessel served as the conference stage for the American officials and the Japanese delegates.

At this conference, details were worked out as to the disposition of mine fields and anchorage facilities and for means of transporting equipment and troops to nearby Kanoya airdrome, the home base of the Jap Kamakaze planes.

Farm Bureau After Members

The kick-off gun of the Pettis County Farm Bureau membership drive was sounded at 8:00 o'clock Wednesday night in the County Court Room, in the court house with Olen Monsees, president of the Pettis County Farm bureau, presiding.

Frank Stoner, a representative of the State Bureau at Jefferson City, delivered a talk on the membership drives throughout the state as a whole, and the purposes of the Farm Bureau in the future. Norton Heffernan, captain of the drive for Pettis county, assigned the solicitors and their routes. Regular business was carried on and refreshments were served after which the meeting was adjourned.

Relieved of Active Duty

SCOTT FIELD, Ill.—Second Lieut. Harold W. Dozier, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Dozier, 1701 South Vermont, Sedalia, Mo., has been honorably relieved of active duty with the Army Air Forces at the Separation Base of Scott Field, Ill. AAF Training Command radio school, after a year in the military service. Retaining his commission and rank, he is still subject to recall at any time during the present emergency.

Lieut. Dozier was stationed at Laughlin Field, Del Rio, Tex., before he was assigned to Scott Field.

He was graduated from Smith-Cotton high school, Sedalia, Mo., in 1934, and before he entered service was employed by Winston Bros., Pt. Arthur, Tex.

eye, another on the right forehead and bruises.

One Said He Was Asleep

Thomas said that he was asleep and did not know what had occurred until he felt himself crash against the windshield of the car. The Martensen boy said Perkins was driving and was headed south on Highway 65. He said the car approaching from the south appeared to be on the wrong side of the highway and Perkins endeavored to dodge it.

Miss McReynolds, in telling of the accident, said the taxi cab had very bright lights and looked to her as if it was on the wrong side of the highway and Perkins endeavored to dodge it and they crashed headon. She said when the cars crashed she was thrown out of the back seat over the front seat and out onto the grass, while Miss Jones was thrown out onto the highway beside the car, and both boys were also thrown from the car.

Had Been To Cole Camp

Thomas said he didn't think they were going fast as the car seemed to jump out of gear when it got to about forty miles per hour. He said he had hired the cab to take him to Cole Camp earlier in the evening and they were returning to Sedalia at the time of the accident.

Clark was in no condition to talk and give a statement regarding the wreck. Perkins was asleep and was not awakened by the officers for a statement. Miss Jones was in no condition to be interviewed regarding her version of the accident.

The taxi cab, a 1940 Chevrolet sedan, is owned by William Cully. The automobile of the Martensen boy is a 1931 Chevrolet coach.

Both cars were demolished. They were brought to Sedalia by Elmer Arnold who was called to clear the highway of the wreckage.

State Trooper Lloyd Amos was called to the scene and made an investigation.

The injured are being treated by Dr. A. J. Campbell and Dr. W. T. Bishop.

and Shidehara's new liberality gave him immunity.

Three other prisoners, Kosuge, Toyotama and Tokyo Kochisao, also opened on the Oct. 10 deadline set by MacArthur. Many of their political prisoners had been held without charge for 10 to 20 years, after they had advocated Communism or spoken against the ruling Japanese government.

Song of Red Flag

The 16 freed from Fuchu heard the crowd sing lustily in the rain what a Korean called "The Song of the Red Flag." The prisoners wore shabby khaki but appeared well fed. They were taken by automobile to Hibiya park in downtown Tokyo where a well-known rally was scheduled later today. Others were picked up from Toyotama prison en route. Banners adorned the vehicles. Some read: "Give rice to starving people!"

Some of the prisoners were taken directly to the First Cavalry division command post for questioning, however, as U. S. officers sought to locate possible additional prisoners housing jailed liberals.

The prisoners termed their treatment cruel. "We were in solitary confinement all the time," one related.

Capt. Edward Lawson

ness and residential districts were untouched by bombings and are much the same as before the war except for being a bit run down. I had a look at the Imperial Palace and palace ground, but of course, couldn't get inside. I saw the place at the entrance to the grounds where many of Hirohito's subjects committed suicide when it became apparent that Japan had lost the war and was going to have to surrender. There haven't been many suicides since the emperor announced the surrender although the war criminals designated by Gen. MacArthur sometimes take that way out. Japanese women in kimonos do the cleaning up around our place and we have Jap waiters working in the officers' mess hall. The waiters bow each time they serve you something and it is quite an amusing thing to watch.

Few Stores Reopened

"Few of the stores in Tokyo have reopened as yet and they aren't selling anything worthwhile but I can see signs of recovery and I hope to shop for some souvenirs one of these days. What few things they have of quality are priced far above their actual or even souvenir value. However, after a time, I know I will be able to make some local connection whereby I can make a decent purchase.

"Last night a couple of correspondents, Hamilton Faron of AP and Keith Wheeler of the Chicago Times and I were guests of a Mr. Adachi of Domei, the Japanese news agency, and a Mr. Matsukuma, manager of the investigations department of Nippon Yusen Kaisha, at a Chinese dinner. It was a magnificent eight-course affair complete with large quantities of saki (Japanese wine-like whisky) and Japanese beer. The food, all of it from the black market, consisted of roast duck, baked chicken, roast pig, some kind of stew which included various fresh vegetables and of course the famous baked fish.

Used Chop Sticks

"Mr. Adachi knew about the place and led us through an exotic district to what looked like a small abandoned shop. When the door was opened we stepped into a small reception room where cute little Japanese women took our shoes and checked them just like the hatcheck girl does back in the States. We then were led to a cozy little dining room where we sat on little mats on the floor around highly polished teakwood tables, not as high off the floor as the table in our living room. The beer was brought first. The meal then progressed as follows: Steaming, unsweetened tea was poured into tiny cups from a neat little tea pot. We then had some soup which we ate with a shoe horn-like spoon. The rest of the meal we disposed of with chop sticks which I was manipulating with a great degree of dexterity, ere we arrived at the fish course which wound up the meal about two hours after the beer was first brought in. I even could pick up a pea or a grain of rice for that matter with the chop sticks. All during the meal either Mr. Matsukuma or one of the kimono-clad waitresses kept pouring saki into our thimble-like cups. Both Japanese beer and this particular brand of saki were of the highest quality. This type of meal is available now only to very few of the wealthy in Japan who know the location of the place and everything must be arranged for in advance. It was the most enjoyable experience I've had in the army and was all the more a success because both of our hosts had been in the United States, could speak fair English and ranked high on the list of the upper crust in Tokyo. Adachi is an official of Domei which is the Japanese equivalent of the Associated Press or United Press and one time was the manager of Domei's Berlin office. Matsukuma held a very influential position with the Nippon Yusen Kaisha which before the war owned more tonnage of commercial shipping than any non-government controlled steamship line in the world. Relations throughout the evening were most cordial and we are to do it again soon. I learned the whole affair cost 900 yen which is $60 in our money and apparently quite a price over here.

Quite A Layout

"The Imperial Palace is a terrific layout and I hope to see more of it some of these times. I have no idea just how big the grounds are. They are surrounded by a 15 or 20 foot stone wall outside of which runs a moat almost a hundred feet wide. There are many canals running through the city of Tokyo and many of the trains, which are somewhat smaller than ours, are operated on elevated tracks which I believe are a smaller gauge than ours. The street cars, which look a lot like those which used to run in Sedalia in a little smaller, are operating in great numbers throughout Tokyo and most of Yokohama although they aren't running between the two cities yet.

Vote For Ten On Highway Department

House For An Increase In Its Membership

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 10.—(P)—A bill to increase the state highway department from four to ten members passed the Missouri House of Representatives 84-34 Tuesday after a bitter battle on the floor lasted nearly two hours.

Already passed by the Senate, it now goes to the governor. The question was immediately posed whether the two houses of the assembly could get the two-thirds votes necessary should Gov. Phil M. Donnelly veto the controversial measure.

The bill received 20 affirmative votes in the Senate last spring when it passed—three votes short of the 23 it would need to pass over the governor's rejection. Today's vote in the house was 17 short of the number the house would need to override the governor.

Hotly disputed since its introduction months ago by Sen. William M. Quinn (D) of Maywood, the measure would give each of the present highway department divisions a representative on the policy making commission.

Criticism Is Voiced
Sponsors claimed this system would prevent domination by any particular section of the state while opponents criticized it repeatedly as an invitation to log rolling.

As Rep. A. V. McRoberts (D) of Lewis county piloted the bill up for final house action, amendments were offered to cut the number of commissioners from ten to six.

Rep. J. S. N. Farquhar (R) of Cape Girardeau county pitched in the first. It would have crossed the highway department division lines used in the Quinn bill and set up six sections for representation, one for each of the major metropolitan areas and one for each of the state's four rural corners.

Opposition mounted after Rep. Melvin Fish (R) of Putnam county suggested that the governor could still appoint three members in effect representing either metropolitan county.

Fish pointed out that in west central Missouri, the governor could appoint one member from Jackson county and from each of the northwest and southwest districts who might reside close to the Jackson county line that their interests might lie more with metropolitan road needs than with the rural sections. The same thing could happen, he said, in eastern Missouri around St. Louis county and city.

To combat that situation, Rep. Emmett Bartram (R) of Nodaway county sought to add adjoining counties to both the Jackson county sought to add adjoining counties to both the Jackson county and St. Louis county districts.

Both amendments were killed. Bartram's went down under a heavy voice vote and Farquhar's met the same fate on a 35-83 division.

Two Divorce Actions Were Filed Tuesday

Mrs. Edna G. Graves petitioned for divorce from Stanley E. Graves Tuesday in the Pettis county circuit court. Married August 4, 1941, in Arkansas, the couple separated in December of 1942, the petition states. D. S. Lamm is attorney for the plaintiff.

In another petition Edlee W. Brinker sued for divorce from Zona E. Brinker to whom he was married February 10, 1943 in Colorado. They lived together until November, 1943, according to the petition. Attorney for the plaintiff is F. F. Wesner. The defendant resides in Peyton, Colo.

Permit For Pool Tables
The Pettis county court Tuesday issued a license to Arthur Dyer to operate four pool tables at premises of 203 North Lamine, the license to expire October 10, 1946.

From that point on supplies should increase gradually, he told the fall conference of the National Retail Dry Goods Association merchandise division.

Constantine warned that that stores probably would have to allot Nylons for some time to come.

Asiatic Delicacy
The curious Asiatic fat-tailed sheep is raised for wool and the tail, which contains many pounds of fat. The tail is considered by natives of both Asia and Africa to be a delicacy.

Don't Show Age
The rings of a rattlesnake's tail give little indication of the reptile's age. Rarely is a snake found with more than 10 or 11 rattles. The whip-cracking effect of the tip keeps them broken off, and new rattles are grown at the front of the tail.

Marshall For Policy of Security

Suggestion For Citizen-Army To Be In Readiness To Take Up Arms

By Elton C. Fay

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—(AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall Tuesday night lifted the lid on an arsenal of "terrifying" new weapons and warned an America entering the atomic age that it must "prepare or perish."

To cope with the menace of scientific mass destruction and to "enforce our will for peace with strength," the army chief of staff urged:

1. Intense scientific research and development.
2. A permanent peacetime citizen-army, trained and ready to take up arms—but "not a large standing army subject to the best of a group of schemers."

General Marshall proposed a year's "unbroken" training—as opposed to brief periods spread over several years—for "all men, who might someday have to fight for their nation. The proposal came in a biennial report to Secretary of War Patterson.

"The only effective defense a nation can now maintain is the power of attack. And that power can not be in machinery alone. There must be men to man the machines. And there must be men to come to close grips with the enemy and tear his operating bases and his productive establishment away from him before the war can end."

It was upon this statement that Marshall predicated his case for a national defense system composed of a trained reserve of citizen soldiers and a compact regular army comprised largely of a strategic force, "heavy in air power."

'Weakness Temptation'
But before detailing his views on this point Marshall presented what he said was his own conception of "what is required to prevent another international catastrophe."

His philosophy was this: "We have tried since the birth of our nation to promote our love of peace by a display of weakness. This course has failed us utterly, cost us millions of lives and billions of treasure.

The reasons are quite understandable. The world does not seriously regard the desire of the weak. Weakness presents too great a temptation to the strong, particularly to the bully who schemes for wealth and power.

"We have ignored the hard realities of world affairs. We have been purely idealistic.

"We must start, I think, with a correction of the tragic misunderstanding that a security policy is a war policy. . . .
For Universal Training
In discussing a system by which the nations can remain strong without bankrupting itself on military expenditures, Marshall emphasized the need for universal military training. Such a system would make it possible to fill immediately, in time of emergency, the ranks of the navy, and army, the national guard and the organized reserve. The armed forces thus would be ready for almost immediate redeployment to counter initial hostile moves.

"By this method," said Marshall, "we would establish, for generations to come, a national entirely within the financial capabilities of our peacetime economy and is absolutely democratic in its nature, and (2) which places the military world and therefore the political world on notice that this vast power, linked to our tremendous resources, wealth, and production, is immediately available."

In this connection, Marshall associated the universal training plan with pending peace negotiations.

Marshall emphasized that universal training was not universal military service.

He proposed that trainees have "an unbroken period" of one year instruction. They would be in an organization separate from combat organizations, maintained for training purposes only. Once trained, they would be freed of further connection with the army unless they chose to join the National Guard, an organized reserve unit or the regular army. But "when the nation is in jeopardy they could be called, by a committee of local neighbors, in order of priority and under such conditions as directed at that time by the congress."

The general rated the national guard as of first importance in the citizen-army.

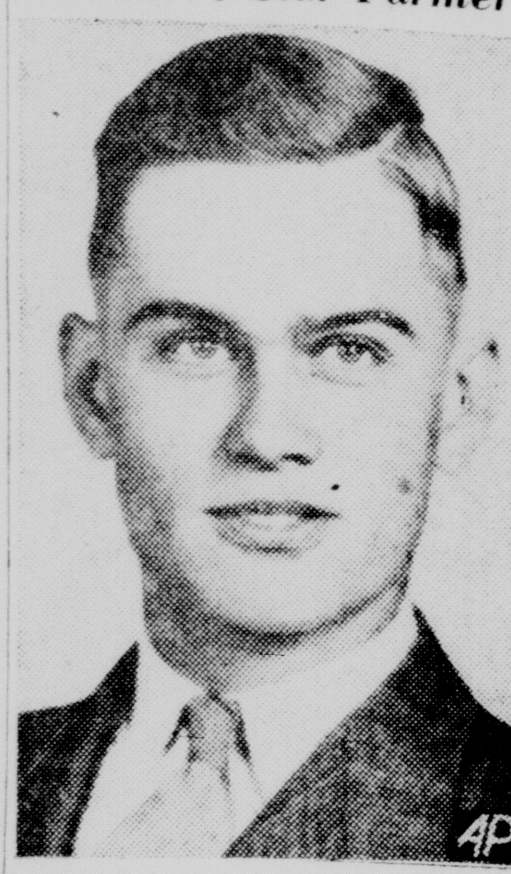

The ROTC should be enlarged and strengthened, Marshall said. Marshall set forth four major functions of the regular army in peacetime.

It should be partially deployed in the Pacific and Caribbean, ready to protect the nation against a sudden hostile thrust.

It should provide security reasons for outlying bases.

It should furnish the overhead, the higher headquarters to "keep the machine and the plans up to date for whatever national emergency we may face in the future."

It should "provide the knowledge, the expert personnel, and the installations for training the citizen-soldier."

CLEAN AS A HOUND'S TOOTH!

That's
Phillips 66

The Honest Oil—from deep in the heart of Oklahoma!

Brother, if you want a clean, sweet, protective oil for your car—lay your dough down for Phillips!

It's clean because it starts clean, and we refine it cleaner. Yessir, we've got a grudge against sludge—and the greatest cause of engine gunk and muck is an oil that isn't as sweet and clean as it ought to be.

And the greatest thing about Phillips 66 is—all its God-given lubricating qualities are unimpaired.

We don't claim the credit for this wonderful oil. We just had enough sense to recognize a great job by Mother Nature—to take it out of the ground—and not to fool with it too much!

So when you change your oil every two months (as you should if you want to keep a car under you) just tell that man—"Fill 'er full o' Phillips!"

You won't find a more honest, natural lubricating oil in America!

"Fill 'er Full o' Phillips!"
